GERMANY MAY ACT AGAINST TWO NATIONS

Mobilizing Army to Move On Poland and Hungary

PARIS, Nov. 29—The New Chronicle (Paris) today charged Germany is mobilizing three army corps for action against Poland and Hungary.

"Our divisions are already completely mobilized," the newspaper said. "The three remaining divisions will be ready to march at any time during the week. The army corps affected are the eighth, stationed at Breslau, the ninth, and the other believed to be the 16th."

The newspaper said all leaves had been canceled for officers while regiments of the nine divisions making up the three army corps.

LABOR PARTY TO MAINTAIN INDEPENDENCE

Resolutions Binding Federation to Political Group Action Beaten

CALGARY, Nov. 29—Members of the Alberta Federation of Labor will maintain their political independence. Resolutions which would have bound the federation to a particular political party as an organization were defeated following lengthy debate at the annual convention here today.

Carl V. Berg of Edmonton secured a majority against a political party resolution. It failed, however, to receive the federation's endorsement.

It is understood sponsors of the resolutions sought to have the federation identify itself politically with the Progressive Conservative Federal government.

TWO RESOLUTIONS

Two resolutions were introduced. The first from Local No. 7296, District 1, of Workers of America, proposed that the convention go on

Persecution Of Jews Protested

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 29—Seventy-five Chilean Senators and Deputies joined in a telegram to Adolf Hitler, protesting the "grave persecution of Jews"

On the one hand is Premier Daladier and his government, determined to use every constitutional force to keep the wheels of industry turning, and on the other are the embattled hosts of French communists who, say their leaders, are prepared to defy use of military force to keep them at their posts on all public utilities.

On the side-lines are the second forces of Royalties and others who are prepared to let the situation appear to be favorable. In any event observers declare that the next two days are portentous. They will either see a government victorious over subversive forces, or a French torn asunder by internal strife which will make days of the French revolution pale into insignificance.

On the other hand are the five transferred corps which were put up this morning on walls all over the capital.

$15,000 FIRE RAZES HOTEL AT VERNON

None Injured In Night Blaze—Owner Attending Edmonton Convention

VERMILION, Nov. 28.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Vermilion hotel early Tuesday. Total loss was estimated at $15,000, which will not be covered by insurance. The building was owned by Ernest Wright, who was not injured and escaped from the blazing structure without injury.

A short circuit or spontaneous combustion is believed to be the cause of the fire, which was discovered burning in the basement of the hotel at 11:30 p.m. No one was hurt. The blaze was brought under control at 3 a.m. by the town's two-train fire brigade.

CLOUD DOWN ROPES

The business section frame structure containing about 40 rooms was reported the building was occupied by 100 men, most of whom three were members of the staff. Two made their escape from the burning building.

Owing to quick action by the fire department, located a half-block from the hotel, adjacent buildings were saved. A portion of the roof dependence on the west side of the hotel caught fire but the flames were quenched before they reached the bus depot on the other side escaped damage.

Tuesday's fire was the largest in the town since the fire which destroyed a pool room and several last winter, which threatened to burn down the entire business section.

Mr. Wright was attending sessions of the Alberta Hotel Association meeting in Edmonton when news of the fire reached him. He left immediately for Vermilion.

hidden goal and the inspiration is attempting to increase in the minds of the people. It threatens not only to compromise public order but to influence the government of France in a most dangerous way.

The government which will let none of the rights it holds by law be honored, will not be able to do much of its duties toward the non-military will be able to take all necessary steps to meet the emergency.

APPEAL FOR CONFIRMATION

The moderate press published urgent appeals for a last minute compromise between the cabinet and leaders of the strike which many feared might lead to civil fighting.

Mr. Léon Blum said:

"History teaches that it is generally bad that revolutions begin."

L'Œuvre declared:

"Men of God will, seek a compromise up to the limit. We have to live with our principles."

Socialists, on the other hand,

Blum, the Comptroller General, Tardieu and Leon Jouhaux, secretary of the Confederation of Labor.

The three leaders and their aids would be prosecuted on charges of inciting to strike.

During his ministerial tour the position the movement must be smashed completely and thoroughly according to the government's authority.

ATTEMPTS REJECTED

The order to the arm, came after the Premier had rejected attempts by war veterans and political parties to bring about a reconciliation between the government and the labor unions.

Sources close to the government said:

"We are not yet in a position to make any decision," said Paul Marchand, minister of justice, to discuss possible arrest.

Speaking on behalf of Leon Blum, the Comptroller General, Tardieu and Leon Jouhaux, secretary of the Confederation of Labor.

The three leaders and their aids would be prosecuted on charges of inciting to strike.

During his ministerial tour the position the movement must be smashed completely and thoroughly according to the government's authority.

STRIKE MUST GO ON

The labor leaders, however, as well as the Communists and Socialists, were resolved the strike must go on as a protest against the government's demands.

During his ministerial tour the position the movement must be smashed completely and thoroughly according to the government's authority.

THE SITUATION

Here is the situation today:

There are six army group commands, instead of three based at Berlin, Paris, London and Moscow.

Following a stroke which left one side of the body paralyzed, the patient is unable to walk. In fact how fast the paralysis is going to disappear.

This makes it difficult to give a definite answer in these circumstances. Usually, after a few days when the patient is able to get on his side becomes aware of the patient finding the power of movement is returning, although the leg may not be strong enough to stand on it. As the strength increases the patient may recover much more slowly and remain partially paralyzed.

After the attack the patient should be kept as quiet as possible. Rest in bed is advisable. When the patient begins to move again he will move quickly, the patient may see no reason why he should rest, but I would advise him to do so.

The stricken person should be kept warm and no food of any kind should be given for some time. If the patient is able to eat, however, he will stand a better chance of recovery. This fast should be continued until the patient is able to eat again. If the blood pressure stays high, it may be kept up longer. I suggest giving him a glass of water to drink.

Every morsel of food taken at this time will interfere with recovery. The patient should be given a particularly careful to avoid diabetic indigestions. If the patient has diabetes, he should eat everything and anything, this may be a hard rule to enforce, but a great deal of good will come from it.

I believe that a fast of a week or two at the beginning will do more good than any medicine which can be given. A fast of juice or tomato juice seems to be especially beneficial in reducing the pressure. The blood pressure is high and either of these may be used along with the diastolic water diet.

After the attack the patient should be doubly careful but if he is willing to take care of himself there is a good chance of recovery.

CANADA FACES DEFENCE PLAN: IAN M'KENZIE

Federal Minister Says
Water and Ice No Longer
Guard Dominion

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, said last night Canada has a problem of national defence and the "historic barricades of water and ice no longer protect us."

In a speech carried over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the minister said that in aeronautical science had already geography and unobstructed distances.

"Not long ago, intrepid Russian flyers had to fly over the Arctic wastes and flew across the Arctic wastes down through Canada in California without landing."

PLANES MAKE CHANGE

"A few days ago, two British planes flew from Egypt to Australia, a distance greater than that from a point in the heart of Europe to Montreal and back again. The lesson was learned that men could fly from Europe, cross the sea, board Canadian cities and return home without landing."

"It would remind you that the world in which these changes in military science have taken place is also changing. We must be prepared to all see the growth of ruthless disturbances rattling their assault on our frontiers and our ports for expansion. The pendulum has been swinging back and again as in her

Mr. Mackenzie said when parliament met more than $3,000,000 for national defence at each of the past two sessions the beginning of the dominion's national defence system was launched.

"We began with a series of fortifications to protect our vital rail heads and shipping centres on the Pacific coast. With a system of port and coastal fortification works which will be virtually completed in a year, Victoria, the key to our Pacific, will be safe. This scheme, will be one of the half-dozen best fortified places in the world."

"On the Atlantic coast the planning has been done of an equally comprehensive scheme and the beginning of the work on naval and defence works at Halifax and a chain of stations across Nova Scotia."

Priority was given the air force in the defence setup because of the vast territory to be protected, the minister continued.

OUTSANDING the juvenile delinquency problem, the experts seem to be in agreement to prosecute the offenders. According to the Juvenile Delinquency Committee, the best way to handle the problem is to have the offenders serve time in a reformatory. The Alberta government has agreed to this plan, and the Canadian government is planning a drive for $80,000 for reformation work with juveniles who get into trouble.

These proposals are all commendable, but the program would be much more impressive and productive if half of the funds were ear marked for prevention of juveniles becoming delinquents in the first place.

An example of a preventive program is offered by the Edmonton Rangers Athletic Club. Chief among its activities is a curling team which has conducted clinics and juveniles in the Northwest section of the city until this club was formed about a year ago. Since then the juvenile problem in Edmonton has become steady until it is now considered that the problem is far from the state where it originated. Some 200 boys are now being helped by the Rangers, and the results are encouraging.

Financing this venture has been a terrible strain since the majority of boys are unable to pay and live here. Here is a realistic and proven case in which a community group of a few hundred dollars a year would save many times that in reformation work. The Eastwood club is not the only one of its kind in Alberta. There are probably a score struggling along with similar problems and doing process.

Teaching youngsters on the right track. A single boy who goes wrong and becomes a criminal cost the province many thousands of dollars. Why then cannot the province assist in preventing the development of the government take some steps to make it easier for juvenile delinquents.

While the majority of members of the legislature do not know it, professional sport in Alberta pays a tax on gate receipts that amounts to $100,000 a year. This is a tax that the government, amateur or amateur, gets absolutely nothing in return for this tax from the government—no grants, no playing fields, no assistance. So far as I can find out, sport is the only thing taxed in Alberta without getting something in return.

Here, I respectfully submit, is a source of income from which the government in this field could finance a number of other good financial projects organizations that are providing sports, physical training and good examples to young people. The government's administrative plan fails to fit into the public's respect for it, however, during these 18 years or over in age; it has all the qualities.

FROM a legal government viewpoint there are objections to such grants and contributions. For one thing, it may seem hard to know where to draw the line. Another objection is that the government would be throwing itself wide open to unclaimed demands.

The answer is simple. The government should not give grants.

Assuming children of parents unable to contribute reasonably should be considered. Many fine organizations for girls and boys have been launched in the past, but they set out to be self supporting which meant fees and contributions by the parents. This has gradually made them into organizations catering only to youngsters whose parents are at least of moderate income. It has barred the boys and girls who most need the assistance of such organizations.

Assuming that the government does not want to give grants, the sport hobbies and activities that are imperative to provide a constructive outlet for youthful energy. There are enough money for paper, food and clothing to allow some such luxuries as a pair of skates or a baseball. Assistance in providing character building facilities for such children is reasonably the provincial government's well-shoulder without any financial strain.

COUNCIL WILL SEEK RULING ON LICENSES

Reference On Powers Of Direction To Be Taken Before Judge

City council will seek a ruling from the supreme court on the limits of its discretion to grant or refuse a license to carry on a business in the city, it was decided at Monday night's council meeting.

The decision arose from an application by the Royal Institute of International Affairs for a hotel license at 97 street and 104 avenue, which was presented by the former minister of foreign affairs, the Hon. J. L. Wilson, of the Union National Federation, the former stating that there were already two other people applying for licenses, the latter stating that they conducted a school on the second story of the premises occupied by the applicants.

LICENSE GRANTED

Council, on recommendation of the bylaws committee, moved that the bylaws committee grant a conditional license at the end of the night.

The applicants had agreed to seek other premises if such were available and to accommodate the wishes of the public by closing their entrance on the avenue.

The bylaws committee recommended that council seek a ruling as to the city's discretion in granting licenses where there were applicants. All three referees added a motion that the solicitor place the question before a judge of superior court if the city's discretion was not a suitable basis for reference.

"It is a farce to bring these matters to council if we have no power to decide," said Ald. E. C. Casmanian.

Institute Labors On World Issues Members Declare

The Royal Institute of International Affairs and its allied bodies exist for the objective study of world problems and the method they pursue for this purpose was illustrated at the recent British Commonwealth Relations Conference at Sydney, Australia. Lionel Curtis, fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, one of the institute's founders, said Monday.

Accompanied by Lyon Macaulay, president of the institute, who also was secretary of the Sydney deliberations, Mr. Curtis arrived in the city from Calgary yesterday. Mr. Curtis, who spoke at a private meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, in Toronto, said:

6 INVOLVED IN ACCIDENTS ON CITY STREETS

Six pedestrians involved in city traffic accidents Monday, none being hurt badly, were involved in the six accidents which occurred in the city, according to the police. One pedestrian was struck by a car driven by J. Hartfield, 11528 84 street, at 113 avenue and 88 street, at 10:15 and suffered a cut on his right hand.

The worst accident occurred at 8:30 a.m. when a man was knocked from his bicycle by a car driven by George Emery, 12613 104 street, at 97 avenue and 97 street. Mr. Curtis is accused of driving under the influence of beer.

The Sydenham conference in September, Mr. Curtis said, was unfocused and the views expressed were not those of the members of the institute. In accordance with the tradition of the institute, a forum was provided for the expression of the most divergent views held by the various members attending the conference.

Both visitors agreed that there was no such thing as any national or international organization of differences and each group was specifically chosen so as to contain members who did not share a uniform view. The discussion of the question that came up for discussion.

They said that a summary of the Sydenham conference did not appear in the October 10 issue of the Oxford Press and readers can form their own opinions of the various cases presented.
